A VERY successful entertainment was given by Professor Hennicke, Madame Stella. and Mr King, in the City Hall, on Saturday evening. There was a considerable audience, which, judging from the applause bestowed on the various performances, were vestly pleased with the wonders exhibited before them. A valuable gun was given away by Mr King, who was the beneficiare of the excession, and fell to the lot of a lady highly popular in society. Before proceeding with his expose of Spiritualism. Mr King in strong terms challenged the action of the Governor to prohibit him, as he had done, from performing in the Chiness Theatrs. He travelled with a licence from the Secretary of State for the Colonies and of the Lord Chamberlain, and, in face of this, he denied the right of the Governor to interfere in the way he had done. This prohibition had nost him several hundred dollars, so that he had substantial right to complain. He was going home, and would lay the whole case before the proper authorities, and take the best advice procurable as to whether he could not be indemnified for this nowarranted interierence with him in the prosecution of his calling. In the Peking Gazette of April 3rd, there appears an important memorial from To Representatives of the other Foreign by brevet, who have been tried on a charge of trading in women land girls during the period of the famine. We take the following translation of it from the N. C. D. Neis :-

One of their number had already been summarily executed as the chief offender in this metier, and the others, seven in all, were tried as accessories after the fact From the evidence taken at the second trial it was proved that they had all, in effect, bought and disposed of women and girls, but they stated in their defence, that they were only executing commissions for their friends, and that the several transactions were not of a business nature. Some women were bought as wives, and others as adopted daughters, for their friends, and they charged no more for them than they paid, receiving nothing in addition except a small present as an honorarium for their trouble. The momorialist finds that the law on the subject is to the following effect :- "Anyone who purobases women and girls, for the purpose of solling them again as wives, concubines, or adopted children, shall receive one hundred blows with the heavy bamboo, and be banished for three years." In accordance with the law above quoted, he has sontenced aix of them to receive a hundred blows in the mitigated degree, and to be banished for three years. The seventh, being an expectant major, has been condemned to of Punishments.

The Temperance Union has a very amusing article on the Races. "Gambling, foul language, and immorality prevail." It This is the verdict of the sober spectator on the Race Meeting." Allow us to differ, O Temperance Union! That observer is very intemperate in his language, although he may not drink Champague; his sight and hearing must be singularly jaundiced. We are inclined to think on the whole that the reporter or editor of the Temperance Union got into the wrong Stand, and made a mistake about the company he was in. We did not see a soul drunk about the Grand Stand, and we don't believe the Temperance Union had a warrant for his grave imputations of the ladies and gentlemen of Shaughai.
